SUBJECT: Annual Performance Review: January 1, 2024 – December 31, 2024

Jamie Brown (May 29, 2025 23:55 CDT)

This letter serves as your performance review for the period January 1, 2024 through December 31, 2024. My evaluation is based on the information submitted through Faculty 180, which includes documentation of your teaching performance, research productivity, and service activities.

Mays Faculty Promotion and Tenure Guidelines define four levels of performance for the key dimensions across which performance is reviewed. These levels of performance are:

- Excellent performance: a high level of performance that meets and exceeds norms and expectations and that is reflected by substantive indicators of excellence;
- Effective performance: performance that meets norms and expectations and that is reflected by substantive indicators of effective performance;
- Needs improvement performance: performance that falls below norms and expectations of effective performance as reflected by substantive indicators of needs improvement performance;
- Unsatisfactory performance: performance that falls below norms and expectations of excellent, effective, and needs improvement performance as reflected by substantive indicators of unsatisfactory performance.

Teaching:

You continue to offer students a valuable perspective grounded in years of industry experience, and many students recognize and appreciate your ability to connect academic content to real-world application. This remains a distinctive strength of your teaching. However, as noted in last year's review and reinforced by this year's student feedback, course organization, clarity of expectations, and consistent instructional support remain areas for improvement. Students expressed frustration with shifting deadlines, limited feedback, and the need to self-teach material. Addressing these issues—particularly through clearer communication and more structured course delivery—will be essential to achieving a more consistent and effective teaching experience across all sections. We believe these adjustments will enhance student learning while better reflecting the depth of expertise you bring to the classroom.

Your formal teaching assignments included FINC 361, FINC 436, FINC 602, FINC 629 (4 sections), and FINC 635. Course evaluations continued to be uneven with FINC 629 and FINC 635 far below department averages. An average of 40% of students in FINC 629 and FINC 635 provided feedback. FINC 436 and FINC 361 enjoyed evaluations that exceeded department averages; however, only 23%, or eight students from those classes, responded to the survey. Student comments were mixed, with some students indicating that you bring valuable industry experience and practical application to the classroom, which helped them connect course material to real-world scenarios. Others expressed concerns about course organization, frequent changes to deadlines and grading policies, lack of clarity in expectations, and limited instructional support.

Most Positive Comments

- Ed White's practical teaching and real-world experience were valuable.

- His perspective from industry helped me get more acquainted with the real world.
- Some lectures were better than others and helped provide foundational knowledge.

Most Critical Comments

- This was one of the worst classes I have taken at TAMU—fend-for-yourself environment.
- Unprofessional and disorganized. Class lacked basic structure and inclusive language.
- Homework was assigned before subject matter was taught—very confusing.

Department Average (Effective Course/Effective Instructor): 4.40/4.44

Overall Evaluation Average (Effective Course/Effective Instructor): 3.87/3.69

Overall Teaching Evaluation: Needs Improvement

Service:

Your service this year included a number of important responsibilities related to program oversight and professional engagement. You served as Director of the Corporate Finance Program, supporting the academic development of students in this pathway. Additionally, you served the department in approving degree plans for MFM students. In your external professional role, you continued to serve on the Board of Directors of Ardagh Group SA and delivered a technical presentation on GAAP–IFRS reconciliation to the Ardagh Metal Beverage Packaging Audit Committee in Luxembourg. These professional activities enhance the relevance of your instruction.

Overall Service Evaluation: Effective

Research and Scholarly Leadership:

As noted above, your position does not have a formal research expectation.

Promotion, Tenure, and Reappointment

You currently serve as Professor of Practice (Executive Professor), the highest rank within your faculty track. You will be reappointed as Professor of Practice for the 2025-2026 academic year.

I truly appreciate all your contributions to the Adam C. Sinn '00 Department of Finance and to Mays Business School. It is a pleasure to work with you!
